

ARIC ANDREW, AIA, LEED AP

Director of Higher Education Design Studio

With more than 35 years of architectural experience, Aric Andrew brings steady leadership and disciplined expertise to Lockett & Farley's Higher Education Design Studio. A graduate of the University of Kentucky with a degree in architecture, Aric has dedicated his career to delivering complex, community-focused projects that balance vision with long-term value. His approach blends technical rigor with a collaborative mindset, ensuring every decision reflects stakeholder priorities, program requirements, and the evolving needs of students, faculty, and communities. At Lockett & Farley, he leads multidisciplinary teams with clarity and accountability, guiding projects from early planning through construction with consistency, care, and purpose.
