

Rolf Provan

President & CEO

Rolf Provan leads Lockett & Farley with a belief that design is a powerful force for transformation. As President and CEO, he guides an employee-owned team united by purpose: to create environments that elevate people, strengthen organizations, and enrich communities. Rolf views design as more than buildings; it is a catalyst for change. Under his leadership, Lockett & Farley engages clients in conversations about how the built environment can advance equity, support new ways of working, drive sustainability and well-being, reduce operating costs, and ultimately improve quality of life. Through the firm's collaborative studio model, which integrates architecture, engineering, and interiors, Rolf champions a culture of shared ownership and expertise. His vision ensures that every project is an opportunity to create lasting impact for those who experience it.

